August 2020

Welcome back families and schools to the 2020-21 school year!

For over 20 years, Project Cornerstone has partnered with Silicon Valley schools, parents, and community organizations to deliver programs, trainings, and services that support youth to develop the social and emotional skills to grow into responsible, caring, and healthy adults who feel valued, respected, and known. Our children, families, and adults in our communities need support in social and emotional well-being, now more than ever.

As we pivot to new distance learning models this year, Project Cornerstone has made adjustments to the way our programs, trainings, and workshops are offered, including:

• Offering pre-recorded lessons and activities that are still based on our impactful, and research-proven Developmental Assets model. Teachers, school staff and/or parents can easily deliver these lessons to their students/own children as virtual lessons in the classroom or at home.

• Working with community organizations to deliver workshops and webinars which offer guidance and tips on how to successfully support youth in distance learning, as well as other relevant issues.

• Developing new parent trainings and workshops that will be offered online, and available as one-time sessions, or as a series.

• Scheduling online collaboration sessions with volunteers to assist with planning, idea-sharing, and overall support.

If you have questions or would like to learn more information about Project Cornerstone please visit our website or contact us at info@projectcornerstone.org